Student Fees

- Projecting over the prior year by approximately $45,000 higher projected enrolments have increased facility and technology fees

Government Grants

- Operating grant is up 1% over 2021-22 as per the MOU with the province
- The $1.9M annual provincial facilities grant ended with the retirement of the Fountain mortgage in March 2022
- The projection for this year has been adjusted by $62,000 due to the net outcome of a pause in CRC funding and higher budgeted grants for the Anna Leonowens Gallery

Investment Income

- Ancillary projection adjusted for increased revenues and expenses
- Financing costs and facility renewal are down prior year by $800,000 due to the Fountain mortgage being fully paid at the start of the current year (no adjustment to projection)

B. Barker asked where the $1.4 million (about six or seven per cent of the annual budget) being given to students comes from, given potential donors' interest in how much of the budget flows back to students in some form. L. Dowe explained there are many sources of support for students split between endowments and operating budgets.

12. Budget 2023-2024

Leanne Dowe, Chief Financial Officer

L. Dowe gave a top line review of the 2023-24 budget and the process and timing to review and advance it through the Budget Advisory Committee.

The 2023-24 budget must deal with:

- A decrease in NSCAD's international student cohort by 31 per cent (and revenues of approximately $60,000) resulting from the global after effects of the pandemic
- Decreasing availability of affordable student housing in a chronic housing shortage environment, which is a significant barrier to growing NSCAD's enrolment (the Halifax area vacancy rate for affordable housing of $850 a month is 0.5%, and NSCAD has no residences of its own)

One fundamental budget challenge is a structural deficit under which projected operating costs are increasing at a faster rate than anticipated revenues

- This creates a gap that must be addressed by consistently and continuously growing enrolments, decreasing expenditures, or supplementing additional revenue streams. The annual 1 to 3 per cent increase from grants and tuition cannot cover the projected costs of collective agreement increases and inflation.
- NSCAD has continuously cut expenses over the past decade and has little room to make further cuts. The university will remain under heavy financial pressure into fiscal 2023-24 and beyond if enrolment does not grow annually at the level to sustain the growth in costs, primarily wage increases.

The other challenge is NSCAD's

Recommendations for Next Year

Increase tuition across the board to 6 per cent for both domestic and international students Tie increases for auxiliary fees to the consumer price index for services (5 per cent) and introduce no new fees this year

Other Revenue Streams

Government grants are increasing $25,000 over the current budget (includes 1 per cent increase for the operating grants continuation of the Canada Research Chairs, special funding for learning resources and research support)
NSCAD is one of the highest percentages of operating budget universities for provincial grants
Investment in income remains static
Commercial rental incomes continue to improve, increasing $35,000
Donation revenues remain static
Ancillary revenues increasing of $88,000 mostly due to the success of Extended Studies' summer camps

Compensation

Largest budget line at $149 million (74 per cent of budget)
Collective agreements with faculty and technicians renewed effective July 1, 2022 to June 30, 2026
Budgeted step and COLA increases for all staff and faculty of $375,000 ($319,000 2022-23)
An increase in salaried positions from 124 to 128
1.0 Chief of Staff, President's Office (permanent)
2.0 Recruiters, Admissions & Recruiting (term)
0.5 Miscellaneous positions, increased number of hours

Strategic planning expenses $20,000

23)
Kaltura online synchronous software $28,000 (no change 2022-23)
In-person graduation, expect some cost savings in consolidating location for ceremony and reception

13. President's Update Report

Peggy Shannon, President

President Shannon thanked the Board of Governors for their work on behalf of NSCAD and recognized retiring faculty member Dr. Jayne Wark, Professor of Art History & Contemporary Culture who shared the story of her time at NSCAD on CBC Radio

Dr. Shannon underscored the importance of actively engaging new supporters, student, alumni and foundations and travelling to Toronto, New York and Europe to meet with people and advance the quiet phase of the capital campaign while learning how people want to engage with NSCAD.

The Envisioning Our Future Committee is well underway with two meetings completed and the third set to split into four theme groups on April 11 for targeted collaboration on the plan themes and goals. The NSCAD community is broadly represented on the committee with Board governors, alumni, faculty, staff, students, technicians and thought leaders in art and design.

Since President Shannon started at the beginning of the academic year she has spent much time listening and speaking with people about their experience and was looking for an external auditor who could conduct an EDA environmental audit, hopefully starting in April or May.
